GERMANY WILLING TO TALK PEACE WHEN HER ENEMIES AGREE TO PAY

Waits For England To Open Negotiations And Her Demands Include Polish Independence, Slice Of Russia And Colonies' Return

PEACE RUMORS PERSIST DESPITE DENIALS

Italian Representatives And Papal Envoy Said To Be On Way To Switzerland For Conference With German Prince Von Buelow

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—"When England begins to talk peace, the war in Europe will be near a close. Germany looks to England to open the discussion and Germany's terms already are formulated."

An official, who has faithfully reflected the views of Ambassador Bernstorff since peace talk first began, made this declaration today and set forth Germany's peace conditions as follows:

A heavy indemnity from the allies to pay Germany's war debt.

Retention of Poland which will be made an autonomous state with a customs alliance; retention of a strip of Courland and the territory now held by Germany in Russia until a war indemnity is paid.

Restoration of at least a part of Germany's colonial possessions and probably the return of all.

Absolute "freedom of the seas."

Germany will give up Belgium, which "she does not care to assimilate."

Evacuation of the Balkans by Russia.

Complete Austro-German control there.

The power to modernize Turkey without interference.

Terms are Final

These terms, it was set forth, are the only terms on which Germany will consent to make peace. Easier terms could have been made a year ago, the official declared, but these terms will be supplemented by harsher ones a year from now. The German empire expects the allies to pay her war bill, he said, and will hold territory now occupied in France and Russia until the bill is paid.

England, this official pointed out, can now make peace, quit the war and still be "even with the game"—barring men killed and the debt incurred.

"But," he was asked, "would not peace at such a price constitute a total defeat for the allies?"

"It would," he said, "but it will be a greater defeat a year from now. The allies must see that they can not

FREAK HAILSTORM HARMLESS BUT IT STARTS RUNAWAY

Traffic Policeman on Corner Stops Tearing Mules but Truck Team Dashes Through

GREENHOUSES ESCAPE DAMAGE

Storm First of Kind Ever Recorded Here in November; "Freak" Says Weatherman

Although the hail-storm which beat upon the city for half an hour yesterday afternoon worked no serious damage, it started half a dozen runaways, two of which endangered traffic at Fourth and Main streets. Quick work by Edward Lueth, traffic policeman, who swung to a bridge of one of the teams, stopped one of the frightened runaways. The other, a heavy truck team dragging a wagon load of bottled pop, went through the Fourth and Main streets junction without a stop. Lueth took one look at the flying horses and waved 'em through with his umbrella.

Flagged With Umbrella

The team that Lueth stopped was a span of mules drawing one of the Murphy transfer company's baggage wagons. They scampered north on Fourth street, and swerved when Lueth waved his umbrella at them. Then the traffic officer seized the bride of the near mule, and brought them to a stop after dragging a few feet.

The pop-wagon team broke away when Arthur Hass, driver, was making a delivery at the home of John P. Salzer, 133 South Fourteenth street. The hail stung them into a gallop through the alley back of the Salzer residence. They dashed north through the alley and as they turned down Main street, the rear end of the wagon collided with the fender and step of street car No. 38, in charge of Motorman Louis Haggel and Conductor W. Griswold. The fender and step were slightly damaged. No one was injured. The team continued their dash down Main street until they reached the corner of Front, where the slipping of the pavement caused one of the pair to lose his footing. His breast was bruised in the fall.

No Damage Done

The hail worked no appreciable damage to greenhouses. The only place which sustained any damage was at the greenhouses of the La Crosse Floral company, where considerable damage was done to cabbages in the field. At the Hillview greenhouse, it was said that very little hail fell, while at the Oak Grove houses, the hail fell in large quantities. The fact that there was no accompanying wind, is all that prevented serious damage, it was said at the greenhouse.

Forecaster E. C. Thompson of the local weather bureau, characterized the hail storm as a "freak." It was the first hail storm ever recorded at the local observatory as having occurred here in the month of November. The storm was unusual because of the time of its appearance, the amount of hail which fell, the uniformity of the particles and the relatively small area in which the hail fell.

None of the stations around La Crosse was visited by the hail, Dubuque and St. Paul escaping the storm. Asked as to the cause of the hail and thunder storm which preceded the downfall, Mr. Thompson said that the hail was entirely unlooked for. He added that any forecaster yesterday would have staked his reputation that yesterday would be a fair day.

All Pellets Round

Almost half an inch of the frozen particles of water was on the ground, and odd, all the pellets were uniform in shape. The weather prognosticator gathered a handful of the hail and found that almost all the grains were round.

RETURNS INDICATE DEFEAT LESS SEVERE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—With returns still trickling in from many counties, it was believed today woman suffrage was not defeated by more than 53,000 votes in Pennsylvania. Complete returns from thirty of the 67 counties of the state and incomplete figures from other counties show a total vote of 289,939 for and 341,062 against suffrage.

The counting of the votes continues slow and it will probably be several days before a definite majority against the amendment can be determined.

COLLEGE BUILDING DESTROYED

MOORE'S HILL, Ind., Nov. 4.—Fire starting from a defective flue today destroyed Moore's Hill, three story brick building of the Moore's Hill Methodist college, causing $20,000 loss. Students discovered the flames and warned forty others who were in the building. All escaped.

TWO SPLENDID ART EXHIBITS TO COME FOR THREE WEEKS

Art Association Opens Season Monday with Fine Exhibit of Works of N. R. Brewer at Library

ETCHING EXHIBIT WILL FOLLOW

Famous St. Paul Artist's Display Precedes Keppel's Great Group of Masters and Women's Etchings

Who Affixed Brewer's Name to Portrait of Late Nathan Myrick?

"N. R. Brewer" is the painter's name sketched at the bottom of the portrait of Nathan Myrick, which hangs in the Washburn library.

But Mr. Brewer says he did not paint the portrait. "Someone copied my name on the painting," said the surprised artist, upon discovering the deception. The Myrick portrait was painted in St. Paul twenty-two years ago, while Mr. Myrick resided there, and was presented to the city of La Crosse. At that time Mr. Brewer was a young artist of the "Sainted City," just coming into note.

With two successive art exhibits, covering at least three weeks, the Art Association of La Crosse opens the season Monday, November 8, with a display of the work of N. R. Brewer, St. Paul, which for one week will be hung in the Washburn library.

The Brewer exhibit will consist of portraits, figures and landscapes, and has been highly commended. Mr. Brewer, who has studied under famous artists, is a member of the Salmagundi club, New York, the most exclusive artists' club in America. Among a number of important state commissions which he has executed was the painting, for the state of Minnesota, of the portrait of the late Governor Johnson which hangs in the state capitol at St. Paul.

A Local Sketch

An interesting feature of the exhibit may be a local sketch by Mr. Brewer. The artist has recently spent several days in La Crosse and has done some sketching in the vicinity. If one or more of these sketches are completed in time they will be hung in the exhibit. Mr. Brewer is also engaged in painting a family portrait for a La Crosse business man.

It is probable that Mr. Brewer will deliver a lecture to the members of the La Crosse Sketch club during his stay, and that he will sketch with them.

Etchings to Follow

Immediately following the Brewer exhibit, for at least two weeks, there will be an exhibit of etchings. The body of this exhibit is the famous group being shown by Keppel, New York, the fame of which is national. It contains works of Rembrandt, Whistler, Pennell, Zorn and other masters.

In addition to the Keppel group there will be etchings by leading women artists, selected and furnished by Dudley Crafts Watson, Milwaukee, who introduced and lectured the last exhibit in this city.

Local Photography Later

Later, probably in January, an exhibit of local amateur photography will be given. This will be built about the work of Carl Rau and L. M. A. Roys, and will include meritorious work of other local artists.

Hoard Is Picked As 'Greatest Man' By The Committee

The committee named by Governor Emanuel L. Philipp to select the greatest man in Wisconsin today reported to the governor that former Governor W. D. Hoard is the state's most distinguished citizen. George H. Gordon of La Crosse was a member of the committee which selected Governor Hoard.

The selection was made in response to an invitation of the management of the San Francisco exposition. The Fort Atkinson publisher will be honored on a special day at the Panama-Pacific fair.

PARLIAMENT EXPRESSES LACK OF CONFIDENCE IN HIS MINISTRY VENIZELOS AT BOTTOM OF TROUBLE

He Resigned When Lack of Confidence Was Voted by the Greek Parliament

Ex-Premier Zaimis

Zaimis, known during his incumbency as "the neutral premier," today stepped out, when Eleutheros Venizelos, whom he succeeded as premier but a short time ago, in parliament, suggested a test of parliamentary power. The vote was against the ministry. It was his efforts, it is generally conceded, which kept Greece from the war. It is considered probable that he will be succeeded by Venizelos, leader of the Greek war party.

VILLA REVERTS TO GUERRILLA WARFARE AFTER REVERSES

He Leaves Agua Prieta Behind and Turns to Westward, Probably to Coast

FUNSTON HAD A HARD JOB

Work of Policing Border Was Complicated by the Positions of Contending Armies

NACO, Sonora, Nov. 4.—Two thousand Villista soldiers had arrived here this afternoon from Agua Prieta battlefield and others were approaching. A hospital has been established. Food supplies, seemingly abundant, were distributed freely.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Nov. 4.—Villa, the guerrilla leader, had today replaced Villa the general who was once all-powerful in Mexico.

Leaving behind just enough troops to keep a watchful eye on the Carranza garrison in Agua Prieta, Villa had led his tattered main army eastward toward Naco, Sonora, preparatory to conducting irregular warfare in other sections where the forces of the recognized government were still weak. The west coast of Mexico was said to be his next objective.

The battle field of Agua Prieta across from Douglas was quiet last night. After retiring yesterday and then returning long enough to receive a curt personal warning from Major-General Frederick Funston not to let any more shots cross the international boundary into the United States, Villa again retreated.

The discussion of Funston's reported request for permission to invade Mexico, if necessary for Douglas' protection, was superfluous. Villa was not expected to re-attack Agua Prieta until he had re-provisioned his men. In fact he had General Calles, Carranzista commander, guessing.

In guerrilla warfare, Villa's next appearance could not be forecasted. A revised official list of casualties in Douglas during the battle of Agua Prieta showed one American soldier

PARIS CONFIDENT GREEK NATION WILL SOON BE AT WAR

Venizelos, Expected to Succeed Zaimis, Known to Be for Quitting of Neutrality

GREECE HOLDS BALKANS BALANCE

Entrance Into War on One Side or the Other Would Mean Victory, It Is Conceded

ATHENS, Nov. 4.—Alexander Zaimis handed his resignation as premier to King Constantine when parliament assembled this afternoon. There was a great demonstration in favor of E. Venizelos, who preceded and undoubtedly will succeed Zaimis.

ATHENS, Nov. 4.—The Greek parliament today passed a vote of lack of confidence in the Zaimis cabinet which resigned immediately.

The question of the law makers' confidence in the administration was raised Wednesday in connection with a debate concerning military proposals. Venizelos suggested the vote, which, cast today, resulted 147 against and 114 for the Zaimis ministry, three members of the chamber not voting.

It was known from the moment of Zaimis' appointment that Venizelos could overthrow his regime as soon as he grew sufficiently dissatisfied with his successor's politics.

Zaimis is not a "peace at any price" man, but takes the view that Greece should not enter the war at present at least. He also denies that the treaty made between Greece and Serbia at the end of the second Balkan war requires the Greeks to come to the Serbs' aid against the Bulgars under existing circumstances. The exactly opposite interpretation is placed on the pact by the Serbs and the larger allies.

The specific act for which King Constantine is said to have sought Venizelos' resignation was the permission Venizelos is understood to have given to France and England to land at Greek ports and cross Greek territory in order to get their troops to Serbia's assistance.

Will Not Stay Neutral, Says Paris

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Greek entrance into the war was regarded here today as almost certain to follow the overthrow of the Zaimis cabinet, and officially in dispatches from Athens.

It is not absolutely certain, however. Eleutheros Venizelos, whom Zaimis succeeded and who assuredly will, in turn, succeed the latter, is known as a war advocate. Indeed, it was for this reason that King Constantine, who favors continued Greek neutrality, forced his resignation.

The presumption is that, back in office, he will force the country into the struggle very quickly.

Nevertheless, it is recalled that King Constantine has twice prevented this. The first time, several months ago, Venizelos resigned because he was not permitted to have his way and a general election followed, as a result of which he was returned to power. The king still staved off hostilities until quite recently, when a showdown was reached a second time and again the premier resigned. This time, instead of an election, Zaimis was named as his successor.

That the Greek ruler, unable to keep the pro-war premier out of office, will continue to resist in view of the latest development, is deemed highly unlikely.

Greece is in a position to put 400,000 excellently equipped troops into the field. The army is already almost, if not quite, completely mobilized. It is assured that, if used, it will be thrown at once and almost in its entirety, against the Bulgarians.

That this will mean an immediate change of the utmost importance in the Balkan situation and render the Teutonic position there extremely precarious, is the general opinion among military experts here. Greece's entrance into the struggle is also deemed highly likely to add Rumania to the allies' forces.

REAR ADMIRAL PHELPS DEAD

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 4.—Rear Admiral Thomas Phelps, retired, former commander of the Mare Island navy yard, died at his home here yesterday.

Here's Another

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 4.—Higino Aguilar, at the head of an army of 7,000, including a large number of farmers, whose plantations were looted by Carranzists, is conducting a revolution against Carranza which is distinct from the Villa and Zapatista movements, according to information brought here today by the steamship City of Mexico. The new revolutionists have again severed communication between Vera Cruz and Mexico City.

TICKET MONEY IS TAKEN FROM CACHE BENEATH MATTRESS

More than $93, the proceeds of tickets sold for the Holy Cross church bazaar, was taken from its hiding place beneath the mattress of her bed, Mrs. Anton Konop, 1459 Redfield street, reported to the police yesterday. Diligent search so far has revealed no trace of the thief or the money.

Mr. and Mrs. Konop left their home Tuesday night to visit relatives in the neighborhood. When they returned, the house was in disorder. The bed had been torn up, the mattress rolled back, and a leather bag containing the money had disappeared. Drawers in a dresser were opened, but nothing else had been disturbed.

Mrs. Konop told the police that she did not think anyone beside herself and her husband knew of her hiding place for the money. A screen of one of the rear windows, which was not locked, had been removed, the police found. In the yard were picked up a purse which had been inside of the missing bag, a lodge dues book, and a gas bill.

County court heard echoes of the case this morning when Mrs. Josephine Tikal, 1309 Redfield street, paid a fine of $3 and costs for assaulting Mrs. Katherine Sobczak, mother of Mrs. Konop.

A son of Mrs. Tikal was questioned by the police in regard to the disappearance of the money. Mrs. Tikal took the matter up with Mrs. Sobczak and the discussion became so heated that blows were struck.

THE FLOWER OF ROMANCE

"He's so mean none of his own folks will have him," Laura remarked thoughtfully. "Berenice told me she wouldn't live in the same house with him not if he was seven hundred times her grandfather. And Ramsay says he'd pinch a penny till the eagle squealed."

"No more eagles on pennies, child," laughed Aunt Bethiah merrily. "Ramsay's fifty years behind the times. What else?"

"Well, he lives in that little old house all alone and he can't keep a housekeeper 'cause no one will stay with him. And now he's half sick and cross as two sticks. Why, when Tommy went over for the milk this morning, he threatened to thrash him with his cane if he spilt a drop along the side path. I'm so glad you've come, auntie, for it is really dreadful to have such a neighbor."

"Oh, I've known Tuck Crawford ever since he was knee high to a grasshopper," said Aunt Bethiah placidly. "He won't hurt anybody, and I've never been afraid of him. He's got plenty of money hid down the well, I suppose, or under the mounting stone."

"Then it's a pity he doesn't dig up some of it for Berenice," said Laura passionately. She perched herself on the edge of the table, a plate in one hand and the dish towel in the other. "She has had to stay at home and take care of her father and all those children, five of them, ever since her mother died, and they're—well—not poor—I suppose, but always just getting by—don't you know what I mean, auntie? There isn't enough money for this and that, and Berenice can't even think of getting married for years and years."

"Has she got any one picked out yet?" asked Aunt Bethiah.

"Has she? Why, don't you know she's engaged to our Rob?"

Mrs. Fennimore dropped her crocheting and looked over her eyeglasses at her youngest niece. The hope of the Fennimore family was Rob. And in the past it had been a safe axiom to state that "girls might come and girls might go, but Rob went on forever." He had passed through college without any troubles and was building his first engineering contract, the new concrete bridge over the Quinnebaug river, seventeen miles below Fairview Hall.

"I suppose," said Mrs. Fennimore, with just a bit of a sigh, "they were sweethearts when they were children. Rob's the kind of a boy to keep the flower of romance blooming for years. Is she nice, Laura?"

"Nice? She's just a darling, auntie. We'll pride over there this morning and you can see her. She's the winsomest girl you ever saw—just that, the winsomest."

"Willing to marry Rob?"

"Oh, yes. I tell you they've been engaged since his junior year, but she has a big idea of duty, and her father needs her. The two after her are boys and the next three girls, so there's no one else, you see, to look after them and bring them up. But if their grandfather Crawford would do the right thing they could afford to hire a housekeeper and let Berenice get married in peace."

"Always was too selfish to give a crow a crumb," Aunt Bethiah agreed. "We'll see what can be done. I never was afraid of Tuck Crawford and I ain't today. He needs a boss fearfully."

About 10 they drove over to the junior Crawford home. It was an old story-and-a-half farmhouse backing up against a rocky hillside. There were late asters blooming in the garden and chrysanthemums, and the porch was ruddy with woodbine.

"Real slightly old place, ain't it?" said Mrs. Fennimore when they came away, "and I do like Berenice. She's sweet as a tea rose, I declare she is, with those big brown eyes and that fair, curly hair. Bless her heart! Just drive over to her grandfather's place, will you, Laura?"

Back on an old side road it was, a little gray house in a tangle of trees and grape vines, with a big well sweep at the back and the barn across the road. Mr. Crawford was struggling with the well, trying to draw up a pail, and Laura hurried over to help him.

"Don't spill it, mind," he cautioned testily. "Can't bear a mite o' damp or mildew round my house. Some folks don't mind, but it makes me fearful chilly. Just set it down on that shelf by the sink, Laura. Much obliged."

"How be you, Tuck?" called Aunt Bethiah, happily, coming up the path toward him, her full skirts brushing off leaves and cobwebs from the doorway. So sweet faced and blooming she looked that Laura stared at her. And so did Tuck Crawford. Not such a vision had he seen in many years in his front yard. He wiped his hand off his coat and gave it to her a bit shyly.

"Why, Bethia, how be ye?" he exclaimed. "Look just as young and pert as ever. When did you get over here?"

"Been east two weeks."

"Widow, too, ain't you?"

"These ten years, Tuck."

"Well, well. How pert you do look." His faded blue eyes lingered on her cheerful face hungrily. "I've been looking 'round for a good, hard-working woman."

"No, thanks," she laughed. "I'm provided for, Tuck. I wanted to see you about Berenice, your grandchild. Our Rob's in love with her, and she with him. I want them to be married."

BROTHERHOOD IS HARD-WORKING TO PROVIDE COURSE

Few Men Band Together and Risk Money and Give
Time to Help Community

More than a dozen high-salaried men working evenings and on every side opportunity to sell course tickets, making all told, a very few dollars above expenses, does not sound like successful business. Yet this is the Brotherhood idea of serving the people.

The Baptist men, for six years, have been bringing popular courses to La Crosse, in conjunction with the University Extension authorities, selling the numbers for actual cost, counting nothing for their own valuable services. Williams, Grover, Kilian, Fynn, Thomas and others, fellows who make things hum, hustlers with whom time is money, are booming their 1915-1916 course these days. To escape a visit from one of the bunch is a piece of luck.

Guaranteeing the thing out of their own pockets, risking half-dollar attractions at a price only four cents above the "movies," they have succeeded every year in doing the city a real service.

This year's course brings The Play-singers, four girls who made a hit in their musical act last winter; Gertrude Moeller, in "What Every Woman Knows"; The Original Illinois Glee club; Paul E. Voelker, in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; Dr. Elson, the eminent Boy Scout Commissioner; Charles H. Mills, British Organist, and Robert O. Bowman, in a costume talk on "Our Imported Americans."

The Brotherhood idea is a good one and worthy of large support. But the best part of it is the personal effort and service these good-fellows put into the thing, for anybody knows that it would be cheaper simply to give the money outright than to give their time to the public.

FIRST SOCIALIST ELECTED

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Abraham Shipplacoff, socialist, was elected to the New York assembly from the Twenty-third district by an estimated majority of over 200. Shipplacoff is the first socialist ever sent to the legislature from Greater New York.

before I go back west. Now, I'll give Rob some money, enough to set him up, and I want you to look after Berenice, give her a nice wedding and some of her grandmother's linen and silver. I know she had a lot of it, probably right up in your garret this minute."

"Like enough it is," murmured Mr. Crawford, stroking his little pointed beard. "I ain't looked to see. How pert you look, Bethia! I can't get over it."

"And you better hire a housekeeper for the children after she's gone, too. Get a real capable woman for about ten a month up here in the country, and your pension's twice that, Tuck. It's all that's left to us old people, this watering the flower of romance, you know, to keep it sweet and growing."

After they had said good-bye and driven down the road, the old man stood watching them leaning his arms on the little dusty iron gate. His face wore a peaceful, satisfied smile. He had promised old Bethia had asked—wedding clothes, old silver and linen, even the housekeeper. As she said, why shouldn't he? Berenice's father was his only son, and he was nearly 80.

"Let 'em have it and enjoy themselves," he said. "Take about two hundred to start with, she said. And I got eight thousand in the bank at Willimantic and four over in Putnam. Guess we can give Berenice a wedding like her grandmother had. Watering the flower of romance?"

He sighed. Sixty years back he had loved Bethia Newell, or was it fifty? Now she stepped into his old garden and the flower of romance lifted its head at her coming and bloomed for another girl and boy.

He sat back up the path smiling and nodding his head, talking softly to himself.

Crush At Concert Start Of "Crush" Of Happy Couple

Roy M. Hazen of the north side and Miss Anna Marie Scherrer were complete strangers to each other when they first sat down on a bench in Riverside park last summer to hear one of the popular band concerts. The fact that the park soon became crowded, and they were forced to sit close together started an acquaintance which resulted yesterday in their marriage.

"A big fat man sat down by me," said Hazen.

"Someone pushed me towards the center of the bench," declared Miss Scherrer.

Anyway, there had to be apologies when the outside parties pushed the young people close to the center of the bench.

"And I'm not sorry we had to make room, either," said the pretty bride. The couple will reside on the north side. Mr. Hazen is a packer at the Listman Mill company.

Church Social Big Event
A large number gathered in the basement of the Presbyterian church here Monday night on the anniversary of the experience social, which was held in conjunction with the annual Halloween frolic. A fair sum of money was added to the treasury from the experience fund.

Ladies' Aid Meets
The Ladies' Aid society of the Lutheran church met Thursday afternoon, serving luncheon in the church basement. The following were hostesses for the afternoon: Mesdames Walter Colbenson, Olaf C. Holter, H. Halvorsen, K. Havde and J. Swenson.

That it pays to keep bees even if one is a resident of a city, has been fully demonstrated by a number of Rushford people, among them Messrs. D. J. Tew and D. S. Prinzing of Rushford. Mr. Tew has not kept so large a number of hives of late years, but Mr. Prinzing's little group of a hundred swarms appear like a small city in themselves, perched upon the sidehill near his residence.

KILLS THREE THEN SELF

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Crazed with despair by his wretched physical condition, Edward McManus, 21, early today killed his wife, Gertrude, 21, and his little son William, 4, by cutting their throats with a razor. He then killed himself by the same method after slashing his two months old daughter, Gertrude Mary.

A FINE TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

EASY TO MAKE AND COSTS LITTLE

Catarrh is such an insidious disease and has become so prevalent during the past few years that its treatment should be understood by all.

Science has fully proved that Catarrh is a constitutional disease and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers, salves and nose douches seldom if ever give lasting benefit and often drive the disease further down the air passages and into the lungs.

If you have Catarrh or Catarrhal deafness or head-noises, go to your druggist and get one ounce of Parment (Double strength). Take this water and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved, take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head-noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and mucus stop dropping into the throat.

This treatment has a slight tonic action which makes it especially effective in cases where the blood has become thin and weak. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every person who wishes to be free from this destructive disease should give this treatment a trial.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How the Old Mandarin Ruled His People.

And Gave Two Tremendous Orders.

"I KNOW another Chinese story," said daddy, smiling.

"Tell it—tell it, daddy!" cried the kiddies.

"Once upon a time there was an old mandarin who had power of life and death over millions of poor people and quite a few rich ones. He himself lived in a wonderful palace, with a garden of twisted old trees around it. He had many servants and wore beautiful yellow silk coats, all embroidered with great gold dragons that meant power."

"Was he a relative of the old mandarin whose daughter was turned into a dove?" asked Evelyn.

"No; he was an ancient mandarin, but the one I am telling you about lived in our time. Well, this mandarin was much troubled by the terrible poverty in his province. The Yangtze river would overflow its banks and spoil hundreds of acres of rice fields, so that thousands of poor little children and their parents would have nothing to eat. Then next he was troubled by the rich people of his province coming to him with word that their cities were horribly dirty and uncared for because they could not get the lazy poor people to work for them and clean the gutters that ran past their palaces."

"For a long time this want and complaining came to his ears, and then he decided to use his great power as mandarin."

"What did he do?" cried both children.

"He called all his courtiers in council and gave out two tremendous orders."

"What? Something terrible?" asked Jack.

"He ordered every rich man in his province to buy a wheelbarrow. This cost a great deal of money, for wheelbarrows filled the province, and the money they set going went into the pockets of needy men and helped stop the poverty. Then he ordered every poor man who had a family of small children without food to take a wheelbarrow and clean the gutters in front of the palaces. Then he ordered the rich men who owned the places to pay the poor men well for doing this cleaning, so that, with their wages, they could buy food for their families."

"It sounds very wise," said Jack, who liked cleverness.

"It was wise," said daddy. "For by these orders he stopped both the poverty and the complaints throughout his entire realm."

The children waved a kiss and ran off to bed.

"I want a real kiss—come back!" called daddy.

Both Jack and Evelyn ran back to him.

"We'd give you four kisses for another story," they hinted.

THE WORTH OF TRAINED OFFICERS

Something of the importance of trained officers in a military emergency of a people whose soldiers must be made from private citizens "while you wait" was demonstrated in To-mah last year. Company K, Tomah's contribution to the Wisconsin National guard, was "petting out." So far had it lapsed that General Orlando Holway asked Capt. W. W. Warren, retired, an officer of recognized skill, to accept the command.

Captain Warren consented. There remained but three weeks before the annual inspection. During that three weeks the company was so fully recruited that it became practically a new company, made up of young men without previous military training.
Despite this, under the master hand of Captain Warren, the company passed the inspection with a record dangerously near first honors
for the state and, during the year, gave a good account of itself on the range in competition with veteran companies of the greatest shooting militia regiment in the nation.

The military college provides excellent training for the pursuits of peaceful citizenship. Fifty thousand young men, trained in such schools, and returned to the pursuits of civil life, could compete in business with graduates of other colleges. For instance, an army engineer could take his place among the industrial engineers of the country. And, should their country call, they would be the salvation of the republic should war be thrust upon us. Education is never a waste, and "preparedness" that meets the issue and at the same time equips an army of young men for the world's constructive work has more to commend it than any investment in agencies created solely for destructive ends.

A HISTORY OF LA CROSSE

The time is ripe for a history of La Crosse county.

We have not reference to a collection of autobiographies and biographies the texts of which are suggested by their subjects and incorporated in the book as paid advertising
the price for which is the purchase of the book.

History in its true sense, a record of facts the narration of which gives each its proper place in the scale of importance and fixes it in the structure with its right relation to and learning upon other facts in the building of this section, is our need.

Comparatively, this is a new community.
There are still among us
men in whose minds, and there alone, are important materials for the historian. In this connection we note with regret that the wealth of information which, with the experience and knowledge for its interpretation, reposed in the memories of such men as the late Col. G. M.
Woodward, G. R. Montague and George B. Rose, is lost to us by our own laches. Others there are whose power to contribute to such a work may be terminated. Soon the whole generation will have passed on, and shall we suffer them to go with sealed lips?

We should like to see here a history,
written as are those chronicles that live because of their merit.
They are rare in western cities.
Green Bay alone of Wisconsin municipalities having one that challenges admiration, but in the older east, especially in New England, they abound. We hope that the pride of La Crosse may stir it to undertake the enterprise.

INTERPRETING
THE ELECTION

That the western trend toward women's suffrage is not shared by the eastern states is not the least important lesson of Tuesday's elections.
However, in contemplating the decisive fact that Pennsylvania defeated suffrage by 25,000 votes, we should not lose sight of the circumstance that 125,000 Pennsylvania voters cast their ballots for the women, and that in the more decisively opposed states more than 200,000
suffrage votes were cast.

The election was encouraging to republicans. It showed the practical elimination of the bull moose party, with consequent returns of republican strength. That the defeat of Governor Walsh, in Massachusetts, indicates repudiation of President Wilson is doubtful, since the eastern states are strongly in accord with his European policy. The close relation between the slump in the bull moose vote and the republican gains is significant, but the republican gain by the re-welding of the party is scarcely less discomfiting to the democrats than did the changed results represent democratic defection.

Municipal ownership fared badly in the election, indicating that the lessons in governmental efficiency that may be drawn from the war have not impressed themselves in this country.

Ohio's repudiation of prohibition may be expected to give a setback to prohibition as a national issue, as a result of which that cause will lose the support of political opportunists who have hitched their chariots to the dry star.

The defeat of the new constitution in New York was accomplished by strange bedfellows—Tammany and the progressives. The latter opposition suggests that the advanced position assumed by Elihu Root has not rehabilitated him with the radical wing of his party and may affect his presidential candidacy. More important, however, is the check which is given to the "short ballot."

Quips and Cranks
and Wanton Wiles

Only a dad, with a third face
Coming home from the daily race;
Bringing little of gold or fame
To show how well he has played the game,
But glad in his heart that his own rejoice
To see him come and to hear his voice.

Only a dad of a brood of four,
One of ten million men or more
Plodding along in the daily strife,
Bearing the whips and scorns of life
With never a whimper of pain or hate
For the sake of those who at home await.

Only a dad, neither rich nor proud,
Merely one of the surging crowd,
Toiling, striving, from day to day,
Facing whatever may come his way;
Silent, whenever the harsh condemn,
And bearing it all for the love of them.

Only a dad, but he gives his all
To smooth the way for his children small;
Doing with courage stern and grim,
The deeds that his father did for him;
This is the line that for him I pen,
Only a dad, but the best of men.

Not So Green After All

An Idaho guide, whose services were retained by some wealthy easterners desirous of hunting in the northwest, took them to be the greenest of tenderfeet, since he undertook to chaff them with a recital
something as follows:

"It was my first grizzly, so I was mighty proud to kill him in a hand to hand struggle. We started to fight about sunrise. When he finally gave up the ghost the sun was going down."

"At this point the guide paused to note the effect of his story. Not a word was said by the easterners, so the guide added very slowly, "for the second time."

"I gather, then," said one young gentleman, a dapper little Bostonian,
"that it required a period of two days to enable you to dispose of that grizzly?"

"Two days and a night," said the guide, with a grin. "That grizzly died mighty hard."

"Choked to death?" asked the Bostonian.

"Yes, sir," said the guide.
"Pardon me," continued the Hubbitt, "but what did you try to get him to swallow?"—Chicago News.

Those Lawyers Again

An Englishman, while passing along the main street in a small town in Maine stepped in a hole in the sidewalk, and falling, broke his leg. He brought suit against the city for $1,000 damages and engaged Hannibal Hamlin for counsel. After settling up the claim, Hamlin sent for his client and handed him $1.

"What's this?" asked the Englishman.

"That's your damages, after taking out my fee, the cost of appeal and several other expenses," said Hamlin.

The Englishman looked at the dollar. "What's the matter with this?"
he asked. "Is it bad?"—Unidentified.

Some Hand For a Sick Man

A certain man stayed out much later at night than his wife liked,
and as he would never tell her where he had been she got their little boy to ask him.

One morning at breakfast the youngster said, "Dad, where wuz yer last night?"

"Never you mind where I was,"
answered the father.

"But," insisted the boy, "where wuz yer?"

"Well, if you must know, I was sitting up with a sick friend."

"Oh, did yer sick friend die?"

"What an absurd question! Of course he didn't die!"

"Oh, but did you hold your sick friend's hand?"

"No," answered the father; "how foolish you are. Of course I didn't."

"And then he added, with a faraway look in his eyes: 'I wish to heaven I had. He held four aces.'"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Why He Did It

At one of the military camps some recruits were being put through the riding test, says London Tit-Bits. One man didn't know much about horse-es, but trusted to luck to get through.

He had not properly adjusted his saddle, and on mounting he swung saddle and all right under the horse's body between its legs, where he was suspended for a few seconds.

"Hi, there!" yelled the non-com in derision, "call that riding, do you?"

"Oh, no, sergeant," was the instant answer, "that's a new trick for the Dardanelles. Riding under here is a fine protection from the sun."

The trouble with most men who say they are overworked is that they are underenergized.

KAZAN

By James Oliver Curwood

Author of The Danger Trail, The Honor of The Big Snows, Philip Steele, Etc.
Copyright 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

But if Gray Wolf had visions of her own Kazan understood nothing of them. He had killed two of the creatures that had dared to invade their home. To the little beavers he had been as merciless as the gray lynx that had murdered Gray Wolf's first children on the top of the Sun Rock. Now that he had sunk his teeth into the flesh of his enemies his blood was filled with a frenzied desire to kill. He raved along the edge of the pond, snarling at the uneasy water under which Broken Tooth had disappeared. All of the beavers had taken refuge in the pond, and its surface was heaving with the passing of many bodies beneath. Kazan came to the end of the dam. This was new.
Instinctively he knew that it was the work of Broken Tooth and his tribe and for a few moments he tore fiercely at the matted sticks and limbs. Suddenly there was an upheaval of water close to the dam, fifty feet out from the bank, and Broken Tooth's big gray head appeared. For a tense half minute Broken Tooth and Kazan measured each other at that distance. Then Broken Tooth drew his wet shining body out of the water to the top of the dam, and squatted flat, facing Kazan. The old patriarch was alone.
Not another beaver had shown himself.

The surface of the pond had now become quiet. Vainly Kazan tried to discover a footing that would allow him to reach the watchful invader.
But between the solid wall of the dam and the bank there was a tangled framework through which the water rushed with some violence.
Three times Kazan fought to work his way through that tangle, and three times his efforts ended in sudden plunges into the water. All this time Broken Tooth did not move.
When at last Kazan gave up the attack the old engineer slipped over the edge of the dam and disappeared under the water. He had learned that Kazan, like the lynx, could not fight water and he spread the news among the members of his colony.

Gray Wolf and Kazan returned to the windfall and lay down in the warm sun. Half an hour later Broken Tooth drew himself out on the opposite shore of the pond. He was followed by other beavers. Across the water they resumed their work as if nothing had happened. The tree-cutters returned to their trees. Half a dozen worked in the water, carrying loads of cement and twigs. The middle of the pond was their deadline. Across this not one of them passed. A dozen times during the hour that followed one of the beavers swam up to the dead-line, and rested there, looking at the shining little bodies of the babies that Kazan had killed. Perhaps it was the mother, and perhaps some finer instinct unknown to Kazan told this to Gray Wolf. For Gray Wolf went down twice to sniff at the dead bodies, and each time—without seeing
—he went when the mother beaver had come to the dead-line.

The first fierce animus had worn itself from Kazan's blood, and he now watched the beavers closely. He had learned that they were not fighters. They were many to one and yet they ran from him like a lot of rabbits. Broken Tooth had not even struck at him, and slowly it grew upon him that these invading creatures that used both the water and land would have to be hunted as he stalked the rabbit and the partridge.
Early in the afternoon he slipped off into the bush, followed by Gray Wolf. He had often begun the stalking of a rabbit by moving away from it and he employed this wolf trick now with the beavers. Beyond the windfall he turned and began trotting up the creek, with the wind for a quarter of a mile the creek was deeper than it had ever been. One of their old fording places was completely submerged, and at last Kazan plunged in and swam across, leaving Gray Wolf to wait for him on the windfall side of the stream.

Alone he made his way quickly in the direction of the dam, traveling two hundred yards back from the creek. Twenty yards below the dam a dense thicket of alder and willow grew close to the creek and Kazan took advantage of this. He approached within a leap or two of the dam without being seen and crouched close to the ground, ready to spring forth when the opportunity came.
Most of the beavers were now working in the water. The four or five still on shore were close to the water and some distance up-stream.

After a wait of several minutes Kazan was almost on the point of staking everything on a wild rush upon his enemies when a movement on the dam attracted his attention. Halfway out two or three beavers were at work strengthening the central structure with cement. Swift as a flash Kazan darted from his cover to the shelter behind the dam. Here the water was very shallow, the main portion of the stream finding a passage close to the opposite shore. Nowhere did it reach to his belly as he waded out. He was completely hidden from the beavers, and the wind was in his favor. The noise of running water drowned what little sound he made. Soon he heard the beaver workmen over him. The branches of the fallen birch gave him a footing,
and he clambered up.

A moment later his head and shoulders appeared above the top of the dam. Scarcely an arm's length away Broken Tooth was forcing into place a three-foot length of poplar as big around as a man's arm. He was so busy that he did not hear or see Kazan. Another beaver gave the warning as he plunged into the pond.
Broken Tooth looked up, and his eyes met Kazan's bare fangs. There was no time to turn. He threw himself back, but it was a moment too late. Kazan was upon him. His long fangs sank deep into Broken Tooth's neck. But the old beaver had thrown himself enough back to make Kazan lose his footing. At the same moment his chisel-like teeth got a firm hold of the loose skin at Kazan's throat.

Thus clinched, with Kazan's long teeth buried almost to the beaver's jugular, they plunged down into the deep water of the pond.

Dr. Joseph Goldberger, surgeon in charge of the pellagra investigations for the U. WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 4.—Silver fox farming, the possibilities of which have attracted considerable attention in recent years because of the money milady spends for silver fox furs is under present conditions a highly speculative and uncertain business, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture. Since 1910 the profits in the business have been derived chiefly from the sale of live foxes for breeding. Recently the demand for these foxes has fallen off because milady's fancy changed and in consequence there has been a sharp decline in prices.

As long as high prices for the pelts are maintained, black and silver fox farming offers good opportunities for reasonable returns providing that the location of the farm and other conditions are favorable. The silver fox can be raised wherever foxes live in a wild state, but the fur will be of a superior quality in the eastern and northern states.

A pair of good breeding foxes have been known to bring several thousand dollars each on the market but common silvers can be purchased for breeding purposes for from $150 to $200 each. The silver fox is very nervous. The female is so nervous she will often kill her young to protect them from imaginary dangers.

Foxes require great care in feeding and a varied diet; which includes meat, fish, mush, milk, bread and table scraps. From $5 to $15 a year for each animal must be allowed for feeding. Only about half of the female foxes produce young in any given year and as the average litter is four cubs the annual increase on fox farms does not average above 100 per cent.

Saving Bees in Winter
No beekeeper, says a new publication of the United States department of agriculture, ever gave a bee colony too much protection in the winter. Insufficient protection, is the great cause of the winter losses which now range from one-tenth to one-half of the colonies.

The beekeeper should aim to maintain a temperature about the bees of approximately 57 degrees F. If the temperature in the hive is permitted to fall below this point, the bees proceed to generate heat by their own muscular activity. This is a strain upon their vitality, which, of course, increases as the outside temperature diminishes. Many of the older bees succumb to it and even those that survive are in poor condition in the spring when the work of brood-rearing should begin.

In generating this heat the bees form a cluster, those on the outside crowding together to prevent the escape of the heat that is generated within. Properly insulated hives will carry the bees through the winter in good condition. Sawdust, chaff, broken cord, shavings, paper, dry leaves, etc., have all proved satisfactory.

OPERATION CAUSES DISCHARGE

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Nov. 4.—Because of an operation for appendicitis, performed five years ago, Marvin Blehl, bugler on the revenue cutter Tuscarora, was today given an honorable discharge from the coast guard service. He had been on the Tuscarora but one month. He was allowed to enter the service while the question of his "physical disability," as the scar from the operation was called, was being considered by government officials.

The average fellow who had planned nothing short of a trip to California feels by this time that he will be exceedingly fortunate if he gets a day off to go fishing.—Nashville Banner.

It is positively known that Gov. Ferguson of Texas intends to call out the Texas national guard to maintain order at the border unless a large number of additional federal troops are sent there. EDUCATION BOARD BALKS AT HAVING DINNER IN SCHOOL

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Officials of the Labor forum were up in arms today over the action of a board of education committee in cancelling permission for a dollar labor supper to be held in the Washington Irving school building. Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the federal commission on industrial relations, was to be the principal speaker.

In sending out invitations, a labor committee referred to the fact that 600 men recently banqueted Elihu Root at the Hotel Astor. The committee added that not the same 600 would banquet Walsh but that in view of his service for social justice it was fitting that he be "honored in the most democratic place in the world—the American public school building."

The school board thereupon revoked the permit, saying they did not like "the tone of the letter."

NIG, THE CANINE OSTRICH, WILL EAT COINS OR THE BUTTONS OFF YOUR VEST

Ladeez and Gent'mun! Your attention is called today to one of the most marvelous specimens of the canine family that ever bit a bone. Roaming the streets of your bee-yootiful little city is the only canine ostrich ever discovered in this great country over which waves the Stars and Stripes.

His name is Nig. He is black. He is a dog. He had a bulldog for a father and a houn' dog for a mother, and the pedigree of his grandparents baffles the efforts of genealogists to unravel. He is slag of the melting pot.

But in this unwashed, lop-eared carcass exists a phenomenon that puzzles science. He has the appetite of the famous two-toed ostrich of the desert. He has the voracity and catholicity of taste of the rampant billy-goat.

Step up, ladeez and gent'mun, and offer Nig pennies, dimes, nickels, iron washers, rubber washers or the buttons off your vest. He will swallow them with a grateful smile and look for more. He is the great canine ostrich, the only one in or out of captivity.

Nig is on exhibition every day, ladeez and gent'mun, in the alley back of the Thill-Manning-Whalan plumbing shop, where he spends his time waiting for the tender-hearted plumbers to toss him little snacks of desiccated rubber tubing, rusted fragments of pipe, or other succulent and tender tid-bits.

He used to hang around No. 1 fire station and snap up the checkers as they fell from the brave fire laddies' board, but his peculiar appetite got the better of his manners one day and he bit a reporter. Hence he was banished.

Step up, ladeez and gent'mun, to see the only canine ostrich.

LA FOLLETTE'S SEAMEN'S ACT IS IN EFFECT TODAY

Law Affecting Shipping, Upheld by Seamen and Attacked by Ship Owners, Goes Into Force

REDFIELD PRAISES THE LAW

Secretary of Commerce Says American Shipping Has Increased Since Measure Was Passed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—With seamen hailing it as the only shipping law which recognizes them as human beings and with ship owners contending that it will not better working conditions, but simply drive American ships from the sea, the La Follette Seamen's act went into effect today, so far as American ships are concerned.

Foreign nations still have four months to revise their customs to meet the law's demands.

For the past several days examinations have been held in all important American ports. These examinations inquire into the ability of each seaman to understand orders,

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 4.—The seamen's law is a measure to set the seamen free from legalized slavery, improve the conditions under which they are compelled to work and raise their standards of efficiency in the service. Despite the calumnious attacks that have been made on this measure by the allied shipping interests and a number of the large daily papers, the people of this country are beginning to see that it is one of the greatest pieces of public welfare legislation written upon the statute books of the nation.

This was the statement made by Senator Robert M. La Follette at his Madison office in an interview on the seamen's law, which goes into effect today.

"Opposition to it is wholly selfish," declared the senator, "and I mean to fight on until there is as complete a measure of safety at sea as is humanly possible to establish."

to man a lifeboat, and to show himself generally as able seaman." Solicitor Thurman of the commerce department, today wired all collectors of the ports in the United States not to hold up the clearance of vessels which had been unable to comply with the seamen's act, if investigation showed a real effort to comply.

The department had received complaints that a number of vessels were without the full complement of men because of the restrictions placed by the act.

The order is intended to prevent any hardships resulting but according to Thurman, a week or two weeks will see the rigid enforcement of all the provisions of the law.

Redfield Defends Law
The seamen's bill was defended against a reported attack by William F. McCombs, chairman of the democratic national committee, by Secretary of Commerce Redfield today. McCombs did not know what he was talking about, Redfield intimated.

McCombs was quoted as saying: "He had not heard of any new vessels being built since August 1, 1914," in presenting an argument to show that the seamen's law will drive American shipping from the seas. Secretary Redfield, denying this, held the present year will be a record breaker for American ship building.

SHIPPING ON INCREASE, HE SAYS

"Whatever the effects of the seamen's law may or may not be," Redfield said, "it is a fact that it cannot be denied that during the six months prior to its going into operation an increasing and in the total an unprecedented number of new ships both for foreign and domestic trade have been ordered from American ship builders and at the time the law takes effect there are more ships being built in American shipyards than ever before in the history of the country."

Secretary Redfield would make no comment on McCombs' demand for the repeal of the law by the next congress. The department of commerce is concerned now only with enforcing the law as it stands, Redfield said. He said, however, that leniency will be shown in cases of violation of the law until ship owners have had time to meet its conditions.

SUFFRAGE WORKER WEDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Suffrage gained another vote today. Miss Alberta Hill, executive secretary of the Women's Political Union and creator of the card index system used in the Wilson campaign in 1912, was to be married this afternoon to J. Francis Smith, secretary to Secretary of the Navy Daniels. Smith was a strong "anti."

BUYS "ROYAL" STORE

F. A. Chase today announced the purchase of the Mindoro Mercantile association for the sum of $18,000. The store was formerly the property of the late A. C. Hanson, known as "The King of Mindoro." R. G. Chase, son of Mr. Chase, will take charge of the store.

MISS WILSON SAYS SHE DOESN'T KNOW DATE OF WEDDING

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—President Wilson's secrets are well kept. And then perhaps Margaret isn't in on the secret, anyway.

When the president's daughter arrived here this afternoon to address the teachers' convention, a reporter asked her views on social service work.

"I know you aren't any more interested in social service work than the man in the moon," smiled Miss Wilson.

"All you want to know is when my father and Mrs. Galt will be married, and I don't know."

Miss Wilson arrived from Chicago at 12:10 and was met by Mrs. F. J. Ward of Madison.

STATE PREPARES TO FIGHT MYRLAND CASE ON FRIDAY

Attorney General Owen Says Habeas Corpus Action May Be Taken in Federal Court

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 4.—(Special.)—"There will be no further developments in the Myrland case today. We are preparing our writ of habeas corpus and will probably be ready to take the matter up on Friday. In the meantime the law of the matter is being looked up. It may be that the application for the habeas corpus writ will be made to the federal court, instead of the state supreme court as originally contemplated."

This was the statement of Attorney General Walter C. Owen, who on behalf of the state is defending Secretary A. J. Myrland of the state tax commission in the contempt proceedings leveled against this official by Judge A. L. Sanborn. Myrland refused to disclose on the witness stand the income tax return of the bankrupt Valcic Condensed Milk company. He gives as his reason that the state income tax provides heavy jail penalties for disclosing the facts in an income tax return.

BRITISH SUGAR BOAT DAMAGED BY MYSTERIOUS FIRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Fires, believed to be of incendiary origin, early today destroyed $25,000 worth of sugar and caused $2,000 damage to the British tramp steamer Euterpe, which was loading in Erie basin, Brooklyn. The sugar was consigned to Great Britain.

Police and fire department officials made a hurry run to the burning steamer and instantly pronounced the fires incendiary.

Slow burning fuses are thought to have been used.

Since the outbreak of the war, fires on sugar ships bound for allied ports have occurred almost daily. Government officials have been working on the cases, and it has been hinted that Robert Pay, one of the men in custody for alleged conspiracy to blow up the munitions ships, has been linked with former fires.

The sugar was in sacks and the fire and water transformed the hold into a sticky mass of brown syrup.

United States Commissioner Houghton this afternoon continued until one week from today the hearing of the seven men charged with conspiracy in connection with the alleged bomb plot. The postponement was granted at the request of the federal authorities and to permit the grand jury now in session to return possible indictments. The grand jury recessed early this afternoon until 11 o'clock tomorrow.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS ON DEFENSE PLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—President Wilson today was on his way to New York, where he will lay his idea of a program of national defense before the country in a speech before the Manhattan club tonight.

The speech is expected to be in the form of an appeal for the united backing of the American people, in pushing through congress plans for army and navy increases which will place the United States in a position to carry on a defensive war.

The president was expected to reach New York this afternoon, planning to go direct to the home of his friend, Colonel E. M. House. He was to be joined there by his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt finished up her New York shopping in whirlwind fashion today. The president was due here at 3:17 this afternoon and she wished to get it completed before he arrived.

SHE KILLED MOTHER WITH FLY POISON

SHAWANO, Wis., Nov. 4.—That she gave her mother, Mrs. William Gustman, fly poison when she did not sympathize with her in an illness, was admitted by Mrs. Albert Ratforth here today. The woman has been held since the mysterious death of her mother on October 17. She told the authorities that she had mother made fun of her. She said she could not stand it any longer and put fly poison in Mrs. Gustman's coffee. Mrs. Ratforth will be taken before Judge Goodland at Appleton, Wis., tomorrow and will be allowed to plead guilty.

ROUSING RALLY IS HELD AT NORMAL

Much Enthusiasm Manifested for Game with Stevens Point Next Saturday

BLANKETS PRESENTED WARRIORS

The Junior Class President Makes Presentation Speech and Captain Strum Accepts

The normal school football team will not be defeated at Stevens Point next Saturday because of lack of student support. Much enthusiasm was manifested at the mass meeting this morning not only by the spirited yelling but by several concrete acts.

Miss Margaret Bodenstein of Madison, president of the junior class, presented this team and succeeding teams with fifteen excellent maroon and gray blankets which the class will leave behind as its memorial. Captain Strum in a short speech gladly accepted the junior gift.

Speeches were numerous at the meeting. Dr. Sputh talked on the merits and demerits of his team. He explained how they had hooked up with a line at Dubuque, the smallest man of which was six feet, one, and he said the fast La Crosse backs could not get started.

Genuine enthusiasm was manifested at the appearance of Layton Gouldin, faculty manager of athletics at the high school. Mr. Gouldin explained that a team of individual stars is no team at all if it has no co-operation, and that, added to the fact that everybody is a supporter, is just the reason that the high school has had so many winning seasons, he explained.

Captain Strum and his followers will leave for Stevens Point tomorrow morning on the Green Bay line, that they may obtain plenty of rest before Saturday's struggle.

La Crosse Has Edge
If comparative scores have anything to do with the game, La Crosse should win by three or four touchdowns but there are many other things to be considered. Stevens point defeated the Superior normal last Saturday 12 to 0, whereas La Crosse ran up a score of 35 against the same team. However, Coach Sputh hasn't the same team that he put against Superior. Taylor is still out, it is doubtful whether LaFromboise will play, Grausnick is weak, and Bechtold of the line has not been able to return as yet. All these men except Taylor will make the trip in an effort to bring home the bacon.

All classes will be sacrificed at 8:10 Friday morning when the team jumps the Green Bay at the State street crossing, in order that they may be sent off with the undivided support of the entire student body.

GERMANY WILLING TO TALK PEACE IF HER FOES PAY

drive the Germans out of France. The same is true of the situation in Russia. It simply cannot be done and the allies are beginning to see it.

"Already England is preparing to abandon her Dardanelles campaign. She admits herself beaten there. Is this not an indication that she will soon be forced to admit the same lack of success in France? Her position in France has not been greater, generally speaking than at the Dardanelles.

"France and Russia cannot make peace. They will continue to fight until they are actually beaten down. Italy is in the same position. Germany, however, does not expect to beat England to her knees. She expects England to be wise enough to quit before she is ruined. But when England talks peace then peace will be near."

Ambassador von Bernstorff was asked to ratify this expression of the German attitude. He smilingly declined, saying he was not in a position to discuss the matter. There is reason to believe, however, that his own opinion differs little from that of the official who outlined Germany's attitude in the above confident manner.

Peace Talk Still Afloat
ROME, Nov. 4.—Peace talk is still in the air here, despite denials from the capitals of all the belligerent European countries.

Germany is generally credited with having started the reports, but today the Matino asserted that representatives of the entente powers will meet Prince von Buelow, Kaiser's ex-chancellor, at Lucerne, to discuss preliminaries looking toward a termination of hostilities.

This statement, given little credence in diplomatic circles, followed the persistent rumor that Mgr. Marchetti, the Pope's representative in Switzerland, is canvassing peace propositions with von Buelow, as well as the statement Wednesday by the Informazione, of Rome, that a member of the college of cardinals is on his way to Switzerland with an autograph letter from the Pope to the prince, presumably dealing with plans for ending the war.

Count Ehrensvard, Swedish minister at Bern, is most prominently mentioned among representatives of neutral nations as engaged in the effort to promote peace, but it is said the other neutral states are watching the situation closely, to lend all the aid in their power.

Whip-Stock Was Switch Bruchman Shows The Court

Christ Bruchman didn't whip his children with the butt of a horse-whip.

When the accused whip appeared in court it proved to be the other end—the switch end.

Mr. Bruchman said that he had whipped the children for disobedience shown their mother, at her request. He said he didn't like to whip children, that he avoided it many times when requested to punish them. He was annoyed because his domestic affairs got into court, and after the hearing remarked that he would not again attempt to discipline them.

Mr. Bruchman appeared in court ready to testify. His wife, who made the complaint, did not appear, sending word that she was ill, and Judge Brindley dismissed the case.

Fall of City Expected Soon with Teutons on One Side and Bulgars on the Other

LITTLE CHANCE FOR ESCAPE

Bulgarians Within Two Miles of the City While Austro-Germans Approach from North

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The early fall of Nish was foreseen here today. It was believed it would be occupied by the Bulgars ahead of the Austro-Germans. Following their repulse in the Nisava valley they were reported to have been reinforced and to be only a few miles from the city.

With the loss of Nish, it was the general opinion among British military experts that nothing would be left for the Serbs to do but to retreat to the westward—if the way still remains open. Otherwise, it was predicted, they would be crushed between the Austro-German forces, from the north, and the Bulgars at their rear.

Whether they can get out of the trap at all, it was said, will depend on the strength of the Austrians along the north and the Bulgars on the south part of the Serbian western frontier.

The Austrians operating from Vicegrad have not only advanced to the eastward into Serbia but have stretched their line somewhat to the westward, unquestionably with a view to preventing the Serbs' escape. It is not believed they are in strong force in this section, however, and they are hampered by the Montenegrins.

Bulgarians have been seen on the Serbo-Albanian border but their forces, too, are believed to consist merely of reconnoitering parties.

If the Serbs can pass between the southern extremity of the Austrian and the northern extremity of the Bulgarian line, they can get into Montenegro or Albania—probably the former, the Albanians generally are hostile to them and have been getting some arms and ammunition from Austria.

killed and another soldier and seven American civilians wounded by Mexican bullets.

Villa retired after losing 473 dead and several times that number wounded, having inflicted losses to the garrison estimated at 25 killed and 75 wounded.

WASHINGTON Task Difficult

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Referring the war in Mexico has proved ticklish and exciting work. General Funston, after spending two days practically under fire, today told the war department the story of the battle which may have settled the fate of Mexico.

Villa has withdrawn from the attack on Agua Prieta, said Funston. "The whereabouts of Villa and his main force tonight is unknown," Funston wired. "There are persistent rumors that he has fled to Cuernavaca, eighteen miles south of here, where there is ample water, recuperating his men in order to return to the attack, but a small detachment of his force, with some wagons, has reached Naco, and is purchasing food, while an officer east of Naco reports seeing a camp of about four thousand across the boundary from Osborne. Villa's forces consist of 12,000 men, thirty-six guns and an unknown number of machine guns. His men suffered terribly during operations here from thirst and hunger, but their spirit is shown by the fact that less than a dozen deserted to our side. All women, children and camp followers usually to be found with a Mexican force were left at Casas Grandes and he has with him nothing but fighting men."

Calles' men fired upon Funston and for a "time interfered with the progress of the battle."

"It may not be understood at the war department why, in view of existing orders, I have not fired upon the contending parties, considering the fact that some bullets and shells struck on the American side, and three men of the Seventh Infantry were wounded," Funston continued. "This was not done because of the evident fact that both commanders were doing all they could to prevent injury to Americans. The principal faults were committed by Calles' men, and I could not in fairness open on Villa without treating Calles the same."

Calles Gets Ammunition
LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 4.—Half a million rounds of Mauser ammunition, consigned to General Calles, Carranzista commander at Agua Prieta, passed through here today. It was sent from the Mexican arsenal at Monterey and will be shipped in bond through the United States.

Bandits Again Active
BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 4.—Soldiers left here shortly before noon today for Fresno, where twenty Mexican bandits were reported to have been seen in the vicinity of the pumping plant. A small detachment stationed there telephoned for aid. The reinforcements were followed a few minutes later by Sheriff Vann with a posse of twenty.

General Funston reported the arrival of Troops B, G, E, M. of the Tenth cavalry and Troops, F, L, and M of the Thirteenth cavalry at Douglas.

Sheboygan Girl Cuts Beautiful Hair In Sleep

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Nov. 4.—When Gertrude Grass entered the freshman class at the Sheboygan high school, she was considered the prettiest and was soon one of the most popular girls in school.

She had long, beautiful, blonde hair, which was admired by everyone. She was only 15, so were it in a braid, which came below her waist.

Last night there was company visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grass. They also admired the girl's hair and talked of it considerably.

This morning Gertrude awoke late and hurried so as not to be tardy at school. When she started to comb her hair, she found that it was gone. In place of the long, blonde tresses she found hair as short as a boy's.

The girl ran screaming downstairs to her mother. As she passed through the library she saw the long braid and a scissors lying on a table.

Mr. and Mrs. Grass believe that the girl, while asleep, clipped off her pretty tresses.

BADGERS BACKWARD AS TO SCHOOLS RACINE MAN SAYS

Governor Criticised as Short-sighted for Urging Repeal of County Board of Education Law

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—That Wisconsin has made little progress in the enactment of educational legislation in the last half century, was stated by Burton E. Nelson of Racine, president of the Wisconsin Teachers' association, in addressing 4,000 teachers at the opening session of the annual convention here.

Mr. Nelson criticised Governor Philipp for his "Shortsightedness" in urging the repeal of the county board of education bill and advocated the appointment of a committee of 100 to study the problems of rural education reforms.

"The little red school house must no longer be held up alone as the symbol of national security, said the speaker. "Its faults must be known. Consolidation of rural schools and not bonuses is a primary condition of betterment."

Dr. Jay William Hudson of the University of Missouri, told the teachers that the hope of democracy in America was in the public schools.

Although no result was given out the primary balloting for president, late this afternoon, forecasted a heavy majority for Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, for president of the association.

The paper will appear at the school regularly every Friday, containing all the school news of the past week.

RUSSIAN FRONT BROKEN ASSERTS VIENNA REPORT

General Van Linsingen Said to Be Successful at the Southern End of Czar's Line

RIVAL CLAIMS MADE FOR WEST

Both Berlin and Paris Issue Statements Announcing Trench Victories

VIENNA, via Berlin and London, Nov. 4.—General von Linsingen's German forces have broken into the Russian's main front west of Czar-torok, in Volhynia, a district adjoining Galicia on the northeast and at the southern extremity of the kaiser's line in Russia, according to an official statement today.

The capture of only 665 prisoners and three Maxim's was claimed but the gain was deemed important inasmuch as it marks the progress of a German offensive aimed at Czar-stok which the Russians reported they had checked.

Between the Austrians and the Russians on the Strypa river fighting still progressed today. The enemy was repulsed in an attack north of Lumbacz, seventy miles southeast of Lemberg.

Trenches Captured

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 4.—Capture of more than 80 yards of French trenches in the fighting north of Maricourt, in the eastern Champagne region was announced by the war office this afternoon.

Twenty-eight Frenchmen including a major were captured and the rest of the trench occupants were killed, it was stated.

The Germans under Marshal Von Hindenburg in the Dvinsk district have recaptured the twelve mile line from which it was officially admitted Wednesday the Russians had forced them to retreat and recaptured

BRIAND TAKES NO STOCK IN TALK REGARDING PEACE

New French Premier Says Country Will Accept Peace Only From Victory

BY WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Peace suggestions were waved aside by Aristide Briand, new premier of France, in the chamber of deputies yesterday.

It was his first speech to the lawmakers since assuming the cabinet leadership. Briefly and pungently he told them that the only peace the French will accept, is a peace won by the enemy's decisive defeat.

"You do not expect a long declaration," he began, rising to outline his ministry's policy.

"We are at war. We must act; not talk. Every government is being strained in the direction of action. Every force of the nation has been grouped with a view to war. Every lack of discipline will receive a reprimand.

"The French army was never more worthy to win. It will fight to a victorious end.

"The nation, parliament, the administration, are entitled to drive the enemy out of the French territory he has invaded.

"France is not concerned with talk of peace. Premeditated aggression forced war upon her. She will not stop fighting until the enemy is vanquished and lasting peace is guaranteed.

"We are in full accord with England concerning the conduct of the war.

"Serbia will receive all necessary aid."

Briand's address was received by the chamber with tremendous enthusiasm.

Its very brevity was regarded as having added immensely to its force.

Though the speech was the premier's necessary introduction, in his new capacity, to the chamber, it was generally regarded as a compliment to English Premier Asquith's statement in the house of commons concerning the progress of the war.

Von Buelow Story Denied

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The German embassy at Madrid officially denied that Prince von Buelow was endeavoring to arrange peace, according to a News Agency dispatch from the Spanish capital.

The chamber passed a vote of confidence in the new ministry, 515 to 1.

A WORD TO LA CROSSE HOUSEKEEPERS

Your family will be much healthier and you will also make a big saving in household expenses if you serve the deliciously appetizing "Minnesota" spaghetti at least twice each week in place of meat.

"Minnesota" spaghetti is four times as nutritious as beefsteak and yet costs only one cent a dish. It contains more proteins than most foods and is therefore more strength giving and less fattening.

"Minnesota" spaghetti is fine for children—making their bodies strong and vigorous. And they love the rich, nut-like flavor.

Be sure to insist on "Minnesota" spaghetti, made from the genuine Durum wheat with all the wonderfully nourishing Gluten left in.

FORBIDDEN GAME CAN BE IMPORTED

Not Illegal to Have Game in Possession on Which Season is Closed in County

Game which is restricted in La Crosse county may be killed by local hunters in unrestricted counties and brought to La Crosse.

This advice was received by County Clerk Bert A. Jolivet yesterday from the Wisconsin Conservation commission. The commission took the matter up with Attorney General Owen, who held that the practice was legal.

This ruling holds good in any county in the state. The commission cited the instance of Dane county, which for twenty years has restricted the killing of deer and prairie chicken. It held that hundreds of hunters in that county visit unrestricted counties each season and bring back their game.

Another point which has not been thoroughly understood by La Crosse county sportsmen was cleared up by the commission's communication to Jolivet by the announcement that quail may be brought from the state of Minnesota to Wisconsin upon obtaining a permit from the state. To get the permit, the hunter must display a non-residence hunting license from the state of Minnesota.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The most significant revelations made by Premier Asquith in his explanations of the progress of the war are the fact that Sir John French had nearly a million British troops under his command during the recent offensive in Artois and the frank admission that the financial burdens of the war are becoming serious.

If, with nearly a million British troops ready for action, the German lines could not be pierced under conditions that existed six weeks ago, it is difficult to believe much hope can be reached that the deadlock in the west ever will be broken by military pressure. Sir John French's report on the Artois offensive, made public this week, shows that a larger gain might possibly have resulted if the arrival of British reserves had not been delayed in the crucial moments during the struggle for Hill Number 70.

But, the dominant circumstance of the Artois engagement is not the failure of the reserves to arrive in time; it is rather the meagerness of the gains compared with the immense force under Sir John French's control. There can be no possible question of the bravery and tenacity of the British troops. But the more their soldierly qualities are emphasized, the less hope must remain that it is humanly possible to overcome the western deadlock by force of arms.

Efforts to destroy the deadlock cannot continue indefinitely because of the approach of financial exhaustion. Mr. Asquith has made this clear. He has told the house of commons that even British financial strength is not capable of bearing the burdens of war unless there is much greater public and private economy. By urging private economy, Mr. Asquith explains that the people of Great Britain must save more money in order that they be taxed the heavier and can subscribe to future war loans as well.

Mr. Asquith's criticism applies to all the belligerents alike. If the prime minister of the world's richest empire is compelled to take a gloomy view of the financial situation of his own country, the plight of the other warring nations is without doubt equally as serious. Under this condition, it is becoming more and more probable that peace will be enforced by gradual exhaustion of the belligerents' supply of silver bullets.

BRITISH ABANDON THEIR SILK HATS

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By mail.)—The velvet hat which, before the war came only from Austria, is now made in England. Silk hats, traditional in England, are not being manufactured because of "no demand." There is a large demand for cheap hats. The British hat trade issues this warning: "The manufacturers of felt hats and caps cannot now guarantee the fastness of the dye, so beware of the rain."

ANOTHER HELD IN CONSPIRACY CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—In the arrest of Albert Verkeyack, a boatman, police believed today they had taken another step in the unravelling of the alleged plot to prevent munitions reaching the enemies of Germany. Verkeyack, they said, has been directly linked with Robert Fay, the alleged ringleader of the affair.

When arrested, Verkeyack had $1,740 in new bills wrapped about his legs under his socks, all of which he offered the detectives for his release.

CEMETERIES OF ITALY DARK ON ALL SOULS' DAY

Government Feared Austrian Aeroplanes and Forbade Use of Candles at Services

BY ALICE ROHE (United Press Staff Correspondent.)

ROME, Nov. 4.—Many a poor woman who has denied herself necessities of life for months that her pitiful soul might buy candles for the soldier dead in the great cemetery of Verano at San Lorenzo; and strangers who traveled thousands of miles to see the flaming torches in this famous City of the Dead on All Souls Day, found posted the government's ultimatum—dooming the graves to darkness on that day, for the first time in centuries.

Church and sepulchre are not sacred from Teuton shells; and Austrian aeroplanes would find the flickering tribute to departed souls a tempting beacon for their bombs. Only the dimmest of small blue lights were permitted, and but a few of these.

Rich and poor mingled in the slow caravan which made the road to San Lorenzo a garland of blooms—blooms to fall upon the new-turned earth of a very great many new graves. The graves of the Garibaldis, who fell in the battles of the Argonne, were buried in flowers.

On All Souls Day neither age nor sickness can keep the poor from the humble graves. The road is filled with tragic pictures as old and young plod pathetically to the great burying ground, carrying their few flowers.

When rich and poor have lighted their own graves they throw their offering of oil into the great bronze urns of the Ossario, where lie buried in common ground, the poor.

Men and women, bent and old, add a pathetic bit to the leaping flames, or throw a tiny waxen candle into the burning mass—for beneath the nondescript slabs lie their loved ones.

There is no more impressive, no sadder sight in all Rome than this view from the high point of the Pinetto, when, at sunset, dusk has crept into those shadowed walks and the thousand lights on the graves of the dead gleam forth; when down avenues of cypresses one sees leaping toward heaven the great flames from the huge urn beneath a wooden cross where the people throw their offerings with a prayer for the souls in purgatory.

ENGLISHMAN MEETS GERMAN COUSIN IN LONDON HOSPITAL

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(By mail.)—A strange coincidence of the war is told by a British officer in a London hospital: "I had picked my way amongst heaps of German corpses on the western front when I was arrested by a rather familiar voice. Looking to my right, I observed one of our Red Cross doctors dressing the wounds of a German officer. "Bad case, doctor," I remarked, and immediately the patient shouted, "Hello Willie!" To my intense astonishment I found he was a German cousin of mine.

"We had a little chat about the days when we were friends and there was no war. My relative did not conceal his emotion, and I, too, was much affected."

LA CROSSE MEN TAKE TWO SETS FROM THE STARS

Bollrud Beats Dunbar and Roth and Schneeberger Beat Champ and Ex-Champ

"La Crosse bowlers showed their goods to the world yesterday." That is the way a bowling enthusiast today expressed himself over the outcome of the exhibitions yesterday between Jimmy Smith of Brooklyn, world's champion, and Alex Dunbar, ex-champ, with local bowlers at the Malloy alleys. The visitors took four of the six matches from the home boys, but La Crosse fans were not disappointed. The showing more than satisfied them.

Lawrence Bollrud, star of last year's Nelsons, and holder of several records on the Malloy alleys, vanquished Dunbar in singles by twenty pins. His score of 210 in the second game bolstered him up while scores of 188 and 197 in other games kept him ahead of the ex-champ, who rolled consistently throughout the match. Five strikes in the second game accounts for Bollrud's victory. George Schneeberger and Ferdinand Roth were the other favored La Crosse men. In doubles, they beat the visitors in a grand total surplus of nine pins. The match was the closest of the tournament. Schneeberger saved the day when he hit the maples for 220 in the second game with five strikes. The La Crosse men finished with a total of 1,090 pins while the visitors were content with 1,081.

Smith, in the doubles match with Affeldt and Ulrich, scored high for the play, getting 255 in the second game. Eight strikes, six of which were in succession, did the trick. The scores:

HAIL STONES FAIL TO STOP HORNE'S FOOTBALL PLAYERS

High Regulars Go Through Final Scrimmage Before the Sparta Game

Hail storms do not stop the high school football warriors. The last scrimmage before they hit Sparta was held last night in the driving storm, which struck the city about 4:30.

Tuesday night's work was far from satisfactory and Horne threatened changes if the work did not improve. The improvement showed up last night with the hail, the seconds being unable to stop the regulars. Eight touchdowns were scored. "Soup" Roellig was tried at quarter last night and handled the slippery ball very well. Zeisler, sub quarter, has not been able to report this week and Roellig is now sub end, halfback, fullback and quarter. "Dad" Swenne and "Heb" Regel are now with the first squad and are making good. They will be missed the seconds, however, when the clubs play the heavy Cashton team. His team defeated La Farge 67 to 0 and the seconds will have to go hard to repeat their victory of last year.

A new idea has been originated by Mr. Colinge. Red cards, the same size and shape of the tag day cards, have been printed. Before the game one side is turned to the front on which are the words "La Crosse Vill." After the game the card is turned and Sparta sees "La Crosse Vill."

YALE HAS HOPES FOR REAL TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 4.—The tide of affairs has turned in Yale football. Following the tremendous enthusiasm attendant on the return of Tom Shevlin and other old stars, Robbingham, former Exeter and Yale freshman star, passed off some scholastic difficulties and was put at left half in place of Walte. Captain Wilson went to right half and Van Nostrand is running the team at quarter.

STUDENTS OF FIVE SCHOOLS OPPOSED TO BASEBALL RULE

HARVARD AND THE TIGERS ON EVEN BETTING TERMS

Princeton Men Respect Mahan's Toe and Tibbott Gets Deference from Crimmon

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES (United Press Staff Correspondent.) NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—From all indications, Harvard and Princeton will enter their annual clash at Princeton on even terms so far as the betting is concerned. Betting began in New York today at even money, with several big wagers placed around the Wall street district. Tomorrow, it is expected, will see the first rush of big money when approximately 1,000 Crimmon students lay over in New York before resuming the journey to Princeton on Saturday morning.

On straight dope the Tigers should be favored a little in the betting. But Princetonians have a wholesome respect for Eddie Mahan's right toe and are demanding even money and getting it. Saturday undoubtedly will see the classic kicking of the season with Mahan on the one side and Eddie Driggs, supported by young Davy Tibbott on the other. Tibbott is almost a certain point getter inside of forty yards and Driggs' punting, if he kicks true to the form he has so far displayed, will offset the all-around effectiveness of the Crimmon leader.

Lehigh alumni have raised a howl at the crowing of kicking stars without mentioning Cahill of this year's Lehigh eleven. Twenty-three points have come off his toe this season—four goals from the field and eleven from touchdowns. Charley Barrett, the Cornell star, leads all eastern footballers when it comes to scoring points. The Cornell captain has scored thirteen touchdowns, leading his nearest rivals, Brickley of Trinity and Curry of Vanderbilt, by three. Cann of New York university is out in front in the number of goals kicked from the field. He has boot five, with Tibbott and Cahill tied with four each.

OFFICERS' BRAVERY WARMLY PRAISED

(United Press Staff Correspondent.) LONDON, Oct. 2.—(By mail.)—All accounts from the British front—correspondents' dispatches, soldiers' letters, official reports—unite in the warmest praise of the gallantry of the English officers, especially the youngsters. The story of the death of Second Lieutenant Emanuel of Belsize Park, as told in a letter to his mother from a fellow officer, is typical:

"Your son was killed on the morning of September 25 while supporting an attack. He was magnificent. I heard the men talking of him among themselves: 'yes, they say he was laughing and chatting all the time, and did them a world of good. Then order came to go to the front line, his platoon was the first to move. 'Hooray! we're going up, lads; come along,' he shouted. He led them all the way and got into the trench safely, but almost immediately afterwards he received a bullet in the chest."

"He was splendid to the last, and his farewell words were: 'Well, cheer up lads! His example has been most inspiring to all of us.'"

SERMONS CANNOT BE IN CHAPLIN STYLE HE SAYS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 4.—"Charles Chaplin" sermons were called "impossible" by the Rev. Samuel H. Woodrow of St. Louis in speaking before the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interior, which closed here today. "There has been much talk about making sermons interesting," said the speaker. "We never can make sermons as interesting as melodramas nor prayer meetings as amusing as Charles Chaplin; they were never meant to be so."

"If a heathen dropped into New York and saw a church with a seating capacity of 1,500 attended by about 200 and dark six days a week, he would never go back with the impression that the United States was a Christian nation."

The following officers were elected at the closing session today: President, Mrs. George M. Clark, Evansville; vice president, Mrs. James H. Moore, recording secretary, Miss A. E. Nourse, treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Hurlbut, assistant treasurer, Flora Starr; auditor, Frank M. Elliott; editor of Mission Studies, Mary L. Lyman; secretary of membership, Mrs. J. B. Leake, all of Chicago.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

ABSINTHE HURLED AT THE GERMANS

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(By mail.)—The "absinthe shell" is the latest in high explosive. Abolished in France as a drink, the French are shooting absinthe into the Germans from the muzzles of their artillery.

In the manufacture of explosives, chemically pure alcohol is used to treat cotton-fulminates. As not enough alcohol is made from sugar of beets, the government has seized the tens of thousands of gallons of absinthe scattered over the country in warehouses and cellars. This absinthe is shipped to distilleries where pure alcohol is made from it.

So despite these "absinthe shells" German soldiers, in a possible case of jaeger, can scarcely expect to get off by saying, "I admit, Captain, that I was drunk and disorderly, but it wasn't my fault; I was hit by a French 'absinthe shell.'"

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Irregular prices and tone in today's stock market opening sent some stocks up 1 1/2 points while others declined from 1/2 to 1/2.

Studebaker gained 1 1/2 at 16 1/2 while Westinghouse at 69 1/2 showed a decline of 1/4.

Steel opened at 86 1/4 and 86 1/2. Though the market grew more active in the first hour, prices generally held steady.

Western Union's advance of 3 1/2 points to 90, highest since 1906 and Crucible Steel's to 75 were prominent features. Steel was firm around 87 1/2.

Bethlehem was up five points. Traders' interest slackened around noon, prices easing off generally, though the undertone of the market was firm.

Goodrich sold at 74 1/4 after reaching 75 1/2. Steel was quoted at 86 1/2 and Crucible Steel 73 1/2.

2 p. m.—The market was strong in the early afternoon; then prices eased off a little and the market turned dull.

U. S. Steel, however, advanced to 87 1/2 or within 1/2 of the high price of its present movement.

Atchison established a new high record for the last three years by advancing to 110 1/2, a point above Wednesday's close.

The market closed with the list generally firm. Sharp advances occurred in some of the industrials just before the close. Westinghouse made good gains.

THE SILO

Wherein is Fodder for Farmers

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Nov. 4.—Guy Spiers, who at the solicitation of A. W. McCann of the New York Globe, is regularly shipping to the Borden company of New York from 20,000 pounds of butter a week, brands as untrue and unwarranted the reports of interviews published in the New York Globe upon the Wisconsin Dairy school and Wisconsin farmers and buttermakers.

Mr. Spiers heard as a disinterested visitor all of the conversation which A. W. McCann had with Mr. Harrington, head of the Wisconsin department of dairying, and condemns the distortion which was made of the facts. In repudiating the statements made by Mr. McCann regarding the quality of Wisconsin butter, Mr. Spiers pays high tribute to the pioneer work done in the past twenty-five years by the Wisconsin school for the improvement of dairying in this and other states.

In his letter to Mr. McCann, which has just been made public, Mr. Spiers said: "You have taken a lot of trouble to go out of your way and attack an institution and a man that have done more to improve dairying conditions than any others in the country."

Bigamy Is Charge

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 4.—Frederick T. Price, who on Monday dropped his suit against the city of Minneapolis to recover damages for the death of Mary Fridley Price, was on Wednesday sought by the police on a warrant charging him with bigamy. The warrant was the direct outgrowth of the civil suit which was dropped when the city declared that Price was never legally divorced from his first wife and hence was not legally the husband and heir of Mary Fridley of Fridley, Anoka county.

While detectives searched for Price, relatives of Mary Fridley, who was killed Nov. 28, 1914, on the East River drive, filed a motion in probate court to reverse the findings of the court which made Price the administrator of the woman's estate and declared him to be the sole heir.

A third action against Price is pending in Anoka county, where David Fridley, father of Mary Fridley, is suing to recover lands deeded to his daughter just before her death.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The official explanation that American Minister Brand Whitlock of Belgium is returning on two months' leave because of ill health was generally accepted here today. Rumors persisted, however, that Whitlock's request for a vacation was involved with popular German disfavor over his conduct of the case of Edith Cavell.

Bearing out the official explanation, state department officials pointed out today that Whitlock was confined to his bed and too ill to conclude the Cavell negotiations, Secretary Hugh Gibson of the American legation acting. That Whitlock has been on the verge of a nervous and physical collapse, was reported. He is expected to make a personal report on the Cavell incident and other matters in Belgium to Secretary of State Lansing before going to rest at his home in Toledo.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics.

Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
